CAPTAIN DIRK VAN DEN BERG

Captain Dirk van den Berg began his sailing career with Holland America Line nearly 35 years ago. At the age of 19, he attended the famous nautical college in Amsterdam, the "Kweekschool Voor De Zeevaart." In 1965, he became an apprentice aboard Holland America Line cargo ships, the ms Gasterdyk. He sailed on the ss Averdyk and ss Amsteldyk, both victory class freighters.

Working his way up through the ranks to Chief Officer in 1984, he has served aboard many of HAL's passenger ships, including the old ss Veendam, ss Rotterdam, ss Maasdam, and even the ms Westerdam. In 1993, he was promoted to Captain on board the Westerdam.

The Commander's love of ships began when he was a youngster, watching passing ships in the North Sea. As a school-age youth, he'd visit coasts and beaches near Amsterdam with his family, spending many happy hours watching the waves roll onto shore.

Born during the Second World War, in Arnhem, the Netherlands, Captain van den Berg still resides there with his wife and 23 year old son. Arnhem, a well-known WWII battle site, is located 100 km east of Amsterdam. When not working at sea, the Captain spends his time collecting and restoring old cars and building ship models out of wood.
